

SORE EYES CURED

Eye-Balls and Lids Became Terribly Inflamed—Was Unable to Go About—All Treatments Failed.

CUTICURA PROVED SUCCESSFUL

"About two years ago my eyes got in such a condition that I was unable to go about. They were terribly inflamed, both the balls and lids. I tried home remedies without relief. Then I decided to go to our family physician, but he didn't help them. Then I tried two more of our most prominent physicians, but my eyes grew continually worse. At this time a friend of mine advised me to try Cuticura Ointment, and after using it about one week my eyes were considerably improved and in two weeks they were almost well. They have never given me any trouble since and I am now sixty-five years old. I shall never fail to praise Cuticura. G. B. Haley, Mouth of Wilson, Va., Apr. 4, 1908."

Cultivate Friendliness.

It is the self-centered hero who lays hold of us—like ever the comradeship of heroes. Dumas' "Three Musketeers" (and the Gascon who made the greater fourths, with their oath, "Each for all, and all for each," inherit that "kingdom of romance." How seldom one pauses to think of the infinite meaning of "friendliness, how little it costs and how ever-widening is its circumference.

The Greater Character.

A man, no matter how capable, how theoretically wise or how singly successful, can find little satisfaction in isolation, for there is no glamor of romance in his career. Some one has said that the kingdom of romance belongs to David, not Samson—to David with his loving, generous, friendly nature, for whom three men went in jeopardy of life to bring him a drink of water—and all for love of him.

Deductive Reasoning.

The Hebrew Standard prints this story: "In Vienna a Christian Socialist of the name of Pelican was the chairman recently of the bureau of buildings. He was visited on business by an architect named Kohn. The following dialogue ensued: 'Mr. Kohn, I am from your name that you are a Jew.' 'Mr. Pelican, I gather from yours that you must be a bird.'"

Took It Literally.

Little Edmund came into the room carrying a bunch of roses. "Who gave you those roses?" asked his mother. Instead of answering aloud, he drew her aside and whispered: "Mrs. Wright gave them to me, mamma. When I said 'Thank you,' she said not to mention it. But I thought I'd better tell you, mamma."—The Delineator.

Onions Cure Nervousness.

Onions are almost the best nerve known. No medicine, it is claimed, is so useful in cases of nervous prostration, and there is nothing else that will relieve so quickly and tone up a worn-out system. Onions are, helpful in all cases of coughs, colds and influenza, and if eaten regularly are very good for the complexion.

The Evolution of the City Mission

made solicitor. Again there was talk of turning over the work entirely to the United Workers, but it was finally recommended that the present arrangement between this society and the United Workers be continued, but that this society appoint five members who shall act as an advisory committee of the United Workers in regard to the City Mission work.

In 1886, joint conferences between the two organizations discussed carefully the financial relations between the two societies, and how to interpose the public more deeply in the work of the City Mission. It was thought that a district division of the city with more solicitors might increase the receipts, and it was hoped that some of the income from legacies held by the United Workers might be applied to meet any deficit in pledges made by the City Mission. The United Workers after explaining some what in detail the original relation between the two organizations and the grounds for expecting the City Mission to maintain the work financially, professed themselves ready to consider the best way of supplying deficiencies after all possible efforts had been made to collect the money by the City Mission.

Accordingly President W. R. Burnham and Treasurer Chapman were authorized to solicit funds for present relief, and, if necessary, to employ some suitable person to conclude the canvass.

In 1896 the salary of the city missionary was raised from $1,000 to $1,500.

In 1898 a special committee was appointed to have a supervision of the city missionary and to come into closer touch with the United Workers. In August of this year Mr. Swan resigned, followed soon after by the resignation of the assistant missionary. The special committee named above took up the matter of appointing their successors and reported at the annual meeting in 1899 that, acting in conjunction with a special committee from the United Workers, the latter organization were allowed to engage Mr. and Mrs. Hetrick to fill the vacant places, and the committee adds: "This plan has worked well so far, and we believe that it is a true one." The committee further says: "The United Workers are a corporate body, thoroughly organized, with efficient workers in every branch of charitable work. Through their various committees they are always near to the needy and suffering. They are constant in investigating cases and giving aid, so that to prevent waste and duplication of work they should be not only in close relation with the city missionary but also in real as well as nominal control of his operations. They are much better able to select assistants with proper qualifications, and to judge of the efficiency of their work than most of us busy men. If they can be assured of our cordial sympathy and help as individuals, they are ready to take on this City Mission work as a special department, with the assistance of an advisory board or committee of men. We are thoroughly convinced that the work of the City Mission will be more carefully supervised and that all needed success will be given to the unfortunate and the worthy poor, with least percentage both of work and expense. If the present City Mission dissolves as an independent body and is succeeded by a City Mission branch of the United Workers, and we therefore recommend that a resolution be passed to accomplish this result." The report was accepted and it was voted that the City Mission work be a special department of the United Workers, and that its work be done in connection with the City Mission. The plan then adopted has been in operation ever since. The United Workers appoint the city missionaries, and the expenses of the City Mission department are met from the common treasury. The City Mission committee of the United Workers have the advice of an associate committee of gentlemen. Rev. Andrew J. Hetrick and wife served very acceptably as missionaries for nine years, till October, 1907. They were succeeded by Arthur F. Corbin, a graduate of the School of Philanthropy in New York, and Miss Emily S. Hamblen of Orange, N. J., who had had experience along sociological lines. These new missionaries remained till December, 1908, when they resigned to take up important positions elsewhere. Lewis A. Nickle of New London was engaged for a while to fill Mr. Corbin's place and remained till the appointment of the present city missionaries in March last.

The United Workers: City Mission Department.

It may be well to note the number of individuals who passed the vote whereby the persistent working of the City Mission was more or less reluctantly accepted by the United Workers and the two became one. There were ten of them interested in what has been done at that last meeting. Of the ten only five are now residents of the city. Two are clergymen and three are laymen.

These five resident members of the old City Mission represented the good will of the men who once belonged to the mission and who contributed on an average somewhat over $2,000 a year towards this work. They represented also the good will of those who never belonged to the mission but who did appreciate and approve the work that had been done by it. Probably, too, they stood for the men who have been interested in what has been done for the past ten years by the City Mission department of the United Workers.

The assurance thus given, constructively, by the men of the city of their hearty co-operation and help was well come to the United Workers, and it is recalled now that the terms of the marriage settlement placed the men of Norwich under perpetual obligation to the women of Norwich to assist them in their philanthropic work, especially as it concerns that part of it formerly carried on by their own City Mission, by the Provisional association, and the City Missionary society of earlier days.

How well the men have done their part the books show. While the City Mission was a branch of the United Workers the names of the contributors to the mission were printed in the annual reports of the United Workers. During the last five years of the separate organization (1898-1899) the receipts of the City Mission from the men averaged $2,200 a year aside from the salaries. Since the union the receipts from that source have steadily averaged that amount, although the expanding work of the City Mission department calls for increased contributions. No regular collection of solicited subscriptions from individual men and business firms. The books are passed around among the men for yearly gifts. Everything received on the books in the early summer, and by the district visitors in the fall, whether from men or women, goes into the general fund of the City Mission. No specified to be used as need requires. Only the United Workers feel bound to continue to use the gifts of the men for City Mission work. Six years ago, when the men were organized, were generally sufficient to pay the entire expenses of the City Mission branch. The salaries, too, were provided from outside sources.

During the five years from 1903 to 1907 (leaving out the year 1908 as exceptional in some respects) the expenses of the City Mission department have been each year as follows: 1903, $2,237; 1904, $2,459; 1905, $2,611; 1906, $3,063; 1907, $3,928. Deducting salary of $1,000 for each year, the most of the balance went for charities. During those years the amount spent for charities more than doubled—a natural increase and quite necessary as it seemed at the time.

With the utmost economy, giving due heed to worthy cases, the City Mission department will need from $4,900 to $5,000 this current year, aside from salaries. A considerable part of this sum will be needed to pay bills coming over from the previous year.

There has been a noticeable reduction in expenses since the year opened. Bills presented in May represented only about one-half the amount of those presented in January and February. On the basis of the May bills, the City Mission department can be run at a cost of between $5,000 and $6,000 a year, including salaries. More than fifty families have assumed self support since the year began. There are now on our books the names of 57 families, of which 21 are American, 11 Irish, 4 negro, 2 Polish, 2 Jewish, and 2 each German, Swedish and Italian. Of this 57, 44 receive weekly grocery orders averaging $1 a week, and 13 receive coal orders only, four milk orders only.

In almost all these cases the assistance given must be constantly varied in conditions not being likely to change for the better. Such help is gladly given because the recipients are believed to be worthy. Many of these families consist of two or three members, for various reasons with little or no earning capacity. Such families are of the nature of fixed charges. Outside of these fixed charges, varying according to the industrial conditions and the number of men out of work.

Now if the men of Norwich were now represented in the United Workers' organization by an advisory committee on its official board, and by an associate committee on its City Mission committee, will provide the funds to meet the entire expense of the City Mission department in ordinary years. It will not be thought an unfair arrangement, seeing that the support of the other two large departments—the Rock Nook Children's home and the Sheltering Arms—can be almost entirely provided for by special gifts to these departments, and from the receipts from board and sales, together with income from invested funds. It must be remembered that the invested funds of the City Mission department are very much smaller than those of the other departments, so that a very much larger proportion of its expenses has to be met from yearly gifts.

In most cities the associated charities are managed and supported by both men and women. There is no reason in its charter why the United Workers should not avail itself of the active co-operation of the men also. Pending the time when the men shall be invited to enter and share the glories and responsibilities of our excellent equivalent of the ordinary associated charities of the day, the best thing possible now is for our masculine philanthropists to make themselves felt through their financial contributions towards the support of the United Workers, especially in its City Mission department.

Their interested observation and scrutiny are invited by the present management of the City Mission, and their lone representatives on the one committee of the United Workers will ever have respectful attention and considerate co-operation.

To Keep Butter Cool.

Where one has no ice box, set the butter in a saucer or soup plate, and place in a larger dish. Invert a porous flower pot over the butter and bread over this a cloth wet in ice water or strong salt water. Let the ends fall into the liquid in the outer dish. As this evaporates, renew. Cloths wrung out of a strong solution of borax and water then wrapped around butter rolls will keep them fairly hard.

Spiced Currants.

Spiced currants make an excellent relish to serve with meats. Allow to each pound of the fruit a pound of sugar. Make a syrup of the proportion of one pint of vinegar to each four pounds of sugar, two teaspoonfuls each of mace, cinnamon and allspice, a teaspoonful each of cloves and salt. When boiling, add the currants, cook 30 minutes and put up in glasses the same as jelly.

Intoxication of Power.

Power will intoxicate the best hearts, as wine the strongest heads. No man is wise enough nor good enough to be trusted with unlimited power; for, whatever qualifications he may have evinced to entitle him to the possession of so dangerous a privilege, yet, when possessed, others can no longer answer for him, because he can no longer answer for himself.—Colton.

Natural History as She Is Spoke.

Doris lived in the city, and a summer visit to grandpa's farm revealed many wonders. After being treated to the farmer's luxury, cream, she was allowed to go to the barn to see the cows milked. She looked on with much interest for a while and then asked: "Grandpa, which is the little pocket she keeps the cream in?"—The Delineator.

Australian Fish.

There are many varieties of Australian fish which are entirely unknown on this side of the world. Some of them are the snapper, the kingfish, the trumpeter, the blue cod, the giant skate, and the yellow breast. The Sydney prawns are the biggest, finest and pinkest (when cooked) in the world; they run to a length of ten inches, and are proportionately fat.

Too Technical.

The artist was picking at a very small bird at the little table d'hôte. He finally laid down his knife and fork and looked plaintively across at his companion. "I don't see how you can eat these table d'hôte dinners," said he. "I can't. There is too much technique."

Sort of Tripartite Mixture.

A typical Manchester man has the enterprise of the American, the doggedness of the Briton, and the caution of a Scotsman, so that he embodies the characteristics of representatives of three countries.—London Young Man.

Her Gifted Relative.

"I've got a cousin on my mother's side," remarked Mrs. Lapaling, "who can do anything with her left hand that she can do with her right. I tell you, it's a great thing for a person to be amphibious."

Diversion of Energy.

Mrs. Partington was trying to sweep back the Atlantic with a broom. "Don't discourage her," begged her husband: "It distracts her attention from the house." Thus we learn even the impossible has its uses.

Way to Improve.

It is impossible to make your conduct perfect, but it is easy to make it better than it has been.—Atchison Globe.

The Truth of the Matter.

"In most cases," said Uncle Eben, "what folks calls failure is simply losin' interest an' layin' down on de job."

The Harder Task.

I can easier teach 20 what were good to be done, than be one of the 20 to follow mine own teaching.—Shakespeare.

Why Physicians Recommend Castoria

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmaceutical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: First—The indisputable evidence that it is harmless; Second—That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food; Third—It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for Castor Oil. It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any Opium, Morphine, or other narcotic and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrups, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a Medical Journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge, Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system—not by stupefying it—and our readers are entitled to the information.—Hall's Journal of Health.

The Kind You Have Always Bought and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

GENUINE CASTORIA
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Letters from Prominent Physicians Addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. W. L. Laister, of Rogers, Ark., says: "As a practicing physician I use Castoria and like it very much."

Dr. W. T. Seely, of Amity, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria for several years in my practice and have found it a safe and reliable remedy."

Dr. Raymond M. Evans, of Santa Ynez, Cal., says: "After using your Castoria for children for years it annoys me greatly to have an ignorant druggist substitute something else, especially to the patient's disadvantage, as in this case. I enclose herewith the wrapper of the imitation."

Dr. R. M. Ward, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Physicians generally do not prescribe proprietary preparations, but in the case of Castoria my experience, like that of many other physicians, has taught me to make an exception. I prescribe your Castoria in my practice because I have found it to be a thoroughly reliable remedy for children's complaints. Any physician who has raised a family, as I have, will join me in heartiest recommendation of Castoria."

Dr. W. F. Wallace, of Bradford, N. H., says: "I use your Castoria in my practice, and in my family."

Dr. Wm. J. McCann, of Omaha, Neb., says: "As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine and aside from my own family experience, I have, in my years of practice, found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Dr. Howard James, of New York, City, says: "It is with great pleasure that I desire to testify to the medicinal virtue of your Castoria. I have used it with marked benefit in the case of my own daughter, and have obtained excellent results from its administration to other children in my practice."

Dr. J. R. Clausen, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "The name that your Castoria has made for itself in the tens of thousands of homes blessed by the presence of children, scarcely needs to be supplemented by the endorsement of the medical profession, but I, for one, most heartily endorse it and believe it an excellent remedy."

Dr. B. Halstead Scott, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria often for infants during my practice and find it very satisfactory."

Dr. William Belmont, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "Your Castoria stands first in its class. In my thirty years of practice I can say I never have found anything that so filled the place."

Dr. R. J. Hamlen, of Detroit, Mich., says: "I prescribe your Castoria extensively as I have never found anything to equal it for children's troubles. I am aware that there are imitations in the field, but I always see that my patients get Fletcher's."

Dr. Channing H. Cook, of Saint Louis, Mo., says: "I have used your Castoria for several years past in my own family and have always found it thoroughly efficient and never objected to by children, which is a great consideration in view of the fact that most medicines of this character are obnoxious and therefore difficult of administration. As a laxative I consider it the peer of anything that I ever prescribed."

Dr. L. O. Morgan, of Bo. Amboy, N. J., says: "I prescribe your Castoria every day for children who are suffering from constipation, with better effect than I receive from any other combination of drugs."

Dr. H. J. Taft, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria and found it an excellent remedy in my household and private practice for many years. The formula is excellent."

Dr. Wm. L. Bosserman, of Buffalo, N. Y., says: "I am pleased to speak a good word for your Castoria. I think so highly of it that I not only recommend it to others, but have used it in my own family."

Dr. F. H. Kyle, of St. Paul, Minn., says: "It affords me pleasure to add my name to the long list of those who have used and now endorse your Castoria. The fact of the ingredients being known through the printing of the formula on the wrapper is one good and sufficient reason for the recommendation of any physician. I know of its good qualities and recommend it cheerfully."
